FIRST WIFE WILL SUE REDMOND

Broker's Ex-Mate Says He Wed Typist Before Divorce Decree Was Absolute

A slender, beautiful little girl, standing upon the threshold of what her friends believe will be a great career as a dancer, threatens more trouble for George F. Redmond just as the Suffolk County Grand Jury is brought together to listen to scores of complaints against the "security" house of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., late of No. 19 Congress street.

The twenty pretty little dancer is Gladys Cook Redmond, daughter of the wife who divorced Redmond in 1918 for desertion which, she alleges, took place seven years previously shortly after the divorce. Redmond Continued on Page 2, Col. 8.

EX-WIFE PLANS SUITS AGAINST BROKER

MRS. REDMOND, NO. 1

Mrs. Georgianna Josephine Cook Redmond, first wife of George F. Redmond, who divorced him in 1918 for desertion. She threatens to sue him for an increase of the $15 weekly alimony she says he has been paying for support of their daughter and for annulment of his second marriage, which she says was performed before her divorce was absolute.

30 TICKET IF COOLIDGE IS NOMINATED

La Follette is Ready to Enter the Race, if Necessary, Against President

Washington, March 17.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin will accept a third party nomination for the presidency if the Republican convention at Cleveland next June chooses President Coolidge and adopts a "conservative" platform. Senator La Follette is discouraging his friends from making a fight for him in the Republican convention, but has indicated to them that should the Cleveland nomination and platform be reaction from the viewpoint of his group, he will not look with disfavour upon a third party nomination.

LIENS OFF ON ROUND GLOBE HOP

Crowd Cheers 3 U. S. Planes Starting Epoch-Making Flight From California

Clover Field, Santa Monica, Cal., March 17 (A.P.)—The army flight around the world started at 9:32 a. m. today. The world endures circled around Clover Field for altitude as a large crowd waved farewell.

They flew in formation, with Major Frederick L. Martin in the front and Lieutenants Lowell Smith and Lieutenant Wade, photographer, second, and Lieutenant Smith, third.

The three crews flew over the northern edge of the field headed for Sacramento, their first stop, at 9:40 o'clock (P.M.) Eastern standard time.

Lieutenant Colonel William E. Gillmore, air officer of the Ninth Corps Area, led seventeen planes from Crissy Field, San Francisco, an escort to the world fliers.

Marlin bombers, giants of the sky, demonstrated flying formations, followed by combat, scout, pursuit, observation, attack, training and passenger transport airplanes. The new world cruisers, the big passenger liner, the Havilaund, Curtis and a 782, Volant, Fokker, 805, Spad and Lapers airplane, came next.

THRONG VIEWS BIG PARADE IN SOUTH BOSTON

Military and Civic Organizations Stage Spectacular Evacuation Day Event

Evacuation Day—the anniversary of the evacuation of Dorchester Heights by the British in 1776—was officially celebrated in South Boston today.

The feature of the program was a military parade in the history of the peninsula district. All along the route, the streets were cleared of snow. Public and private buildings, business places and residences were bedecked with flags and bunting.

APPEAL TO IRISH MADE BY COSGRAVE

By DANIEL O'CONNELL.
DUBLIN, March 17 (Copyright, 1924, by I.N.A.)—President William T. Cosgrave today addressed through International News Service a message to all Irish men and women throughout the world, appealing to them to assist in establishing peace and unity throughout the Free State.

The message follows: "In honoring St. Patrick's Day, Irish men and women proclaim once more the unity of their race of which St. Patrick is the symbol. Upon this recurrence of his festival let us pray that the entire world may be united in the brotherhood of St. Patrick's teachings and realize our common destiny as one people."

W. T. Cosgrave, president of the Free State, was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the Irish-American League in New York City, which was held last night.

WOMAN, 69, WHO LIVES ALONE BADLY BURNED

Roxbury Victim's Clothing Catches Fire as She Is Preparing Breakfast

Miss Margaret Clark, an aged woman living alone in a room on the third floor of the block at No. 36 Williams street, Roxbury, was burned on the arms, face and body today when her clothing accidentally caught fire.

Miss Clark, who is sixty-nine, was found by friends who hurriedly answered a call sent in by other tenants of the building. She evidently had been lighting the fire in the stove in preparation for her breakfast.

The flames burned the woman to the City Hospital, where her injuries were placed on the danger list. Only a little of the woodwork in her room was charred, the loss being about $10.

ARMY BASE CAPTAIN SUICIDE

Officer Whom Doctor Had Given Short Time to Live Ends Life With Bullet

Captain John J. Deeming, in charge of the Commissary Sales Store at the army base in South Boston, was found dead in the store today with a bullet hole in his right temple.

The captain, who had charge of large funds and thousands of dollars in army property, shot and killed himself with a 4-caliber Colt automatic pistol some time between 2 o'clock yesterday and 8 o'clock today, when Lester W. Monarch, a civilian workman in the store, opened it up.

The body of Captain Deeming was in a sitting position in a chair. In his right hand he still gripped the heavy-caliber pistol. A note he had written declared his intention of taking his life "for personal reasons."

DIES AT POST OF DUTY.

Six months ago, according to brother officers at the army base, doctors told the captain that he had not long to live.

At 2 o'clock yesterday the watchman at the gate at First Army Corps Area headquarters saw Captain Deeming enter and go directly to the commissary sales store.

He did not return while watchman was on duty, nor did the watchman, who subsequently went on duty see him leave the base.

It is believed he went to the base with the intention of ending his life at the post of duty.

Captain Deeming was married and the father of three children. The widow, Mrs. Nancy Deeming, and the children, Harold, fifteen; Helen A., twelve; and John, Jr., five, are living at No. 5212 Crim avenue, San Diego, Cal.

FAMILY IN THE WEST.

Two years ago Captain Deeming, who was forty years old and had seen nineteen years of service in the army, was transferred from his home base from the south. He brought his family with him and established them in a home at the Westchester Apartments, No. 813 Beacon street, East Boston. However, his wife and children went to San Diego. The captain expected to go, but was held here for duty by the sales store.

Daugherty Kept for Political Power, Senator Charges

Washington, March 17.—Attorney-General Daugherty is being kept in office by President Coolidge solely because of his coming campaign, Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, today charged in the Senate.

"Everyone knows there would be a quick change of attorney-general if Mr. Coolidge were not a candidate for re-election," said the Senator. "It is certain Mr. Coolidge doesn't dare to let Daugherty go simply and only because of political reasons."

PROMISED 'BIG CUT' TOOTHES

Witness at Hearing Says He Was Also Told That Burns "Stood in" on Deal

Washington, March 17.—The name of Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty was directly linked with the Dempsey-Carpentier fight film deal in testimony today before the Senate's investigating committee.

Cecil B. Hollander, former Dempsey-Jones agent, testified that Jap Muna, Washington correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer, said one of those named as involved in the arrangement, had "mettally secured" the Attorney-General himself with being the head of the "company" to show the picture throughout the country without department of Justice interference.

The witness declared Muna also had told William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, was "standing in" on the deal.

Hollander also said Muna told him the Attorney-General said to him: "If you put this across you ought to get a big cut, not less than 50 per cent."

The witness was asked what he knew about any arrangement whereby the picture were to be exhibited over the country, in spite of the law prohibiting their transportation in interstate commerce.

ORDERED BY BURNS

F. C. Quinn, producer of the film, has testified that they were shown in twenty-two States, under "an understanding" that there would be no interference by the Justice Department, and Quinn B. Means.

RANDOLPH BANK ROBBER IS CAUGHT

Gerald Chapman, Who Escaped From Atlanta, Recaptured in Kentucky

Gerald Chapman, one of the five men who robbed the Randolph Savings Bank in 1919, has been captured once more—this time in Boston, Ky., near Greenville.

A man said to have been identified as Chapman through a photograph is under arrest in that town, according to word received in Boston today.

Chapman was wanted by the federal authorities for breaking federal prison at Atlanta after serving six months of a twenty-year sentence for a $500,000 New York mail robbery.

PROBE DEATH OF PROVIDENCE GIRL OF 24

Celia Crowley, Beauty Parlor
Assistant, Fatally Hurt
at Roadhouse

Providence, March 17.—The death of Celia Crowley, twenty-four-year-old beauty parlor assistant, who received fatal injuries at a roadhouse in Cumberland, will be investigated by the grand jury.

All the evidence in the case, which baffled police on account of contradictory stories told by the dead girl's friends and others, will be presented in a few days, Attorney General Herbert L. Carpenter announced today.

Celia Crowley was one of a party of five which made the route of the country tour on New Year's eve. In some mysterious manner she received injuries to her head which resulted in death early the next morning.

Frank L. Waterman and Ernest Velt, Providence automobile dealer, and Mrs. Velt and Charles Velt told of a gay party beginning at the Toffi apartment and ending at Hillside Inn. Waterman said the girl left him and went outside and soon afterward he was told she was hurt.

Miss Olive Brown, the proprietress of the inn, told a different story, saying that Waterman appeared at the door with the dying girl in his arms. County Coroner Walter Barker of Woonsocket reported "no evidence of criminal responsibility." A prominent Providence man who was at the Hillside Inn on New Year's eve, but was not previously questioned, will be called.

Hub Smart Set Represented in a Sargent Portrait Exhibition, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

REMEMBER the days when the puffed sleeve and the high waister held their respective high places in fashion and sport? These quaint days have been recalled to the crowds thronging the exhibition of portraits done by John Singer Sargent in the Grand Central Art Gallery, New York.

Many of those whose aristocratic faces look down from their frames upon the assembled art lovers are now departed. Others whose portrait the famous artist painted in their debonair days are coming with their grown children to the exhibition.

Quite naturally, Boston had a notable representation at the exhibition. From the Endicott family came the picture of Mrs. William Endicott, Endicott, 1822.

Peabody, whose late husband was Secretary of War in Cleveland's administration. Another interesting portrait was that of Mrs. Eliza Warren (Gretchen Osgood) of Mr. Vernon Place, and her "little girl," Marjory. The latter is now a grown woman, the wife of William Whitman and, other Bostonians whose canvases are included in the exhibition are Mrs. Augustus Henshaw and Mrs. Charles E. Inches (Louise Pomeroy). Mrs. Richard M. Salmonstall has lent the portrait of her father, Peter Chardon Brooks.

A compliment to Sargent was revealed when Mrs. Inches attended the exhibition the other day. Though a number of years have passed since the former Miss Pomeroy sat for the picture, those standing near her immediately saw how true was the likeness. The eyes were the same and there was only slight change in the features.

NOW that Miss Katherine Thomas—eldest sister of the quartet of Thomas girls—has been selected to play the role of "Colonel Fairfax" in the cast for "Wake Up," the Vincent show, is quite complete.

As April approaches, the clever Vincentites are rehearsing more earnestly than ever. Two of the specialty dances bound to score a hit will be the "Dance of the Dainty Dancers."

A LARGE number of society folk are interested in the ramage sale to be held tomorrow at Horticultural Hall, for the benefit of the Secretary of State Club.

Gorgeous blossoms donated from private conservatories or downtown florists will be sold by a group of attractive women. It will be a case of "buds" selling buds, as all the girls selected for this task are debutantes.

Among them are Miss Isabel Thornhill, Katherine Gray, Anna Hubbard, Helen Gowan, Louise Thayer and Jolly Webster.

MISS ANNA HALL, and her brother, Henry L. Hall, of Commonwealth avenue, spent the weekend visiting with friends at Sandwich, on the Cape.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Bell (Marion Fenno) are on their wedding journey en route to Nassau. Mr. and Mrs. Bell were married earlier in the month at Trinity Church.

Mr. Richard W. Steele of Commonwealth avenue and Merrill Grinnell of Cambridge have arrived in Nassau at the Royal Victoria Hotel.

MUCH CHARITY AT VINCENT MEMORIAL

Small Huntington Avenue
Hospital Does Much Good
Work for the Poor

This is the twentieth of a series of articles which is a sequel to this newspaper's investigation of medical quackery in Greater Boston. If you are not acquainted with reliable physicians and wish to make sure of obtaining expert advice and fair dealing, the series will show you how to avoid quacks by patronizing Boston's health centers, the best in the country.

Small in size, great in charity is the Vincent Memorial Hospital at No. 125 South Huntington avenue, maintained chiefly through the generosity of the over 900 members of the Vincent Club.

Persons of moderate circumstances, or the very poor need not consult quack doctors while such reputable institutions as this render skilled service.

Founded in the days when there were no evening dispensaries, no free clinics connected with hospitals, and no social service workers, this hospital grew from a small building in Chambers street, West End, to the present splendid brick edifice, where last year 6,118 days' care was given patients.

WORKERS CARED FOR. The primary object of this hospital is to give medical and surgical aid to women and children over twenty years of age of any race or creed, especially to those whose earnings without homes in which they can be properly cared for.

Visiting patients may engage private rooms and additional nurses "rent," said Miss Joan Cameron Fraser, superintendent. "The only distinction made between the rich and poor patients is the price of the room and the cost of the nursing."

On occasion, when we feel that the patient needs more privacy, we place her in a special room," she said. "The rent is $1.50 a week down."

According to the patient's ability to pay, the hospital offers a variety of services. For details see Saturday's Boston American.

the appearance of Madame Ernestine Richman, Haiti, world famous contralto. Andrew J. Gleason, chairman of the Evacuation Day Committee, presided. There were, in addition, addresses by Mayor Curley, Dr. Jeremiah J. Blake, superintendent of schools, and others.

The entire program, address and musical numbers, was broadcast.

PARADE DISPOSING. In the military parade, which started at 2:30, the Michael J. Ryan Band, A. L. declined to participate because it was not given place in line behind the United States War Veterans.

However, the procession was none the less imposing, including army, navy and marine corps regiments, national guard troops, veterans of the district, and semi-military organizations such as the South Boston and Dorchester High School Cadets, St. Vincent Cadets, St. Augustine Cadets, and the Glee of Heaven Cadet Band. Members of the South Boston Citizens' Association, Mayor Curley and other officials rode in automobiles.

LINE OF MARCH. John T. Cur was chief marshal of the parade. The route of the procession was from Andrew's square, through Dorchester street, East Fourth street, G street, Thomas Park, around Dorchester Heights, down East Sixth to H street, to East Fourth street, in Park street, and through East Broadway, West Broadway, Dorchester avenue, and to Devon street, where the parade broke up.

The closing event of the celebration will be the annual banquet of the South Boston Citizens' Association at the Hotel Lenox tonight. Among the speakers will be Governor Cox, Mayor Curley, Fire Commissioner Quinn, Congressman Galvin and Professor George Barry of DePue University. Major General Edward L. Logan will serve as toastmaster.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR ALVAN T. FULLER wishes he owned a newspaper "so I could write the men in public office who use their positions for private gain."

Dr. Lawrence J. Henderson, in an address on "Blood" at the Harvard Medical School, said: "The scientific discoveries of Newton, Faraday, Pasteur and Lavoisier were far ahead of the material inventions of Edison and Marconi. In saving a life, a physician owes his ability to the science, rather than to the mechanical aids."

Mrs. Schumann-Heink is no Spring chicken. She said so herself when her piano audition in Symphony Hall refused to go home and demanded encore after encore. "You must think I'm a Spring chicken," she said. "No, no. I must save my voice as I can come back and sing to you next year."

JOSEPH P. TULLY, secretary of the late ex-President Wilson, declares the Wilson ideal freed Ireland. "Woodrow Wilson," he says, "dared with courage and solemnity to do what he believed to be the right thing for Ireland. I believe that the torch of self-determination which he held high will point the way to the ultimate freedom of those people whose limbs are heavy by the shackles of British and German government."

OBREGON BARS LANDING OF U. S. MARINES

Cancels Request Made by Federals at Acapulco as a "Treasonable" Move

Mexico City, March 17.—Secretary of War Serrano, en route to Salina Cruz with an expeditionary force, has changed his course, proceeding to Acapulco as a result of the reported capture of that port by rebels under Caudillo Aguilar, according to information given even by the War Department. He is expected to re-occupy the place without difficulty. General Francisco Matias, sub-secretary in charge of the department, says the government had received unconfirmed reports that the commander of the federal garrison, upon the approach of the rebels, requested the captain of the U. S. S. Stenmetz, anchored in the port, to land a detachment to keep order. It is understood that the Mexican War Department sent a message to the American capital saying that the federal authorities at Acapulco had no authorization to request foreign armed assistance. The Cincinnati Post to day upon receiving the War Department's message. The Cincinnati commander wire said the United States Navy Department for instructions and also sent a message to Secretary Serrano, who was known to be en route to Salina Cruz with several thousand men.

Daylight Saving to Start on April 27 This Year

Do not make the blunder of setting your clock an hour ahead a week from next Sunday, under the delusion that daylight saving time has arrived.

Daylight Saving in Massachusetts does not go into effect until the last Sunday in April, which, this year, falls on April 27. It continues until the last Sunday in September.

When the Massachusetts Legislature first enacted a Daylight Saving law, the bill provided that the daylight saving period extend from the last Sunday of March to the last Sunday of October.

Opposition to this measure, largely from the rural districts, resulted in the amending of the law, shortening the daylight saving period by two months.

U. S. SHIP CREW SEIZES CRAFT IN MUTINY

Captain and Vessel Rescued as U. S. Officers Respond to Radio Calls

Key West, Fla., March 17.—(United Press)—Answering a distress wireless call from the oil tanker Mary Luck, back, Deputy Marshal Lopez, board the U. S. S. Saco, boarded the Luckenbach fifty miles out from Key West and found the officers in hiding and the crew in mutiny, with reward Peterson leading the attack.

Captain McDonald had fled to the ridge where he had been kept viciously a prisoner in momentary danger of his life. At Deputy Lopez boarded the Luckenbach, he was met by the boat's crew, armed with a machinegun, but after a short resistance, the deputy took the machine into custody.

Officers from the Saco swarmed over the rail behind Deputy Lopez, released Captain Peterson, and then located Peterson in hiding.

Peterson jumped at Captain McDonald, but was overpowered and placed under arrest. Others of the crew, fearing for their lives, begged to be taken aboard the Saco, but their appeal was refused.

One man, however, jumped from the tanker to the government vessel as the latter was clearing away. Captain McDonald broadcast his need for assistance and another tanker, passing in the Gulf, answered the call, and was left standing by in case of further need of aid. The boatswain and the man who jumped overboard are in the custody of Marshal Lopez. Peterson was brought here and placed in the county jail. He had been in there twice before, but each time had been released by friends.

2,500,000 CHILDREN IN GERMANY STARVING

Washington, March 17.—Two and one-half million children in Germany are starving, sickness is still prevalent, and unemployment is reaching almost unbelievable heights. The Federal Council of Churches declared today in a statement urging support for the relief campaign being conducted in the United States.

From fifty to seventy per cent. of the children in cities and industrial districts are under-nourished, says the statement, and "rickets, blindness, scurvy, spinal curvature, anemia and pellagra are prevalent."

BID COOLIDGE ASK RELEASE OF DE VALERA

Diners Here Also Memorialize Congress to Protest Free State's Action

A resolution memorializing President Coolidge and Congress to protest against the action of the Irish Free State and to demand the immediate release of Eamon de Valera and other political prisoners, was unanimously adopted today at a luncheon at the Boston City Club.

The luncheon was largely attended by persons who were active in greeting de Valera when he was in Boston and addressed a meeting at Brattle Field, several years ago. The resolution set forth that de Valera "is charged with an offense but has of liberty and his country's honor" and that he is held in custody because "he will not swear falsely an allegiance he does not hold."

The resolution directs that copies also be sent to Premier MacDonald of Great Britain.

John Morton presided as chairman of the committee in charge of the luncheon, assisted by Christopher I. Fitzgerald, Dr. James T. Gallagher, John J. Riley, Jeremiah J. Mackin, Dr. J. P. Ryan, Dr. Henry V. McLaughlin, Francis J. W. Ward, Dr. Francis P. McCarthy, John J. Foley, William DeLue, John T. Hughes and William H. O'Brien.

Dublin Is Partly Dry on St. Patrick's Day

Dublin, March 17.—St. Patrick's Day, a public and bank holiday in Ireland, lacked some of the features of past years.

There was no procession or demonstration by the Gaelic league which formerly was the big event of the day and there will be no organized display of Irish-made goods in the stores during the week as in former years. This must await the horse show and the Tailor's show in the summer.

Dublin was partly dry. The saloons were not all closed, but the Bar Association's Association opposed to all its members to refrain from work on the national feast day, so that virtually the only public houses open were those in which the owners and their families carried on the business.

Score New York Parade as Political Demonstration

New York, March 17.—Despite the absence of Eamon de Valera's followers and members of the Irish Republican Labor Alliance, 25,000 men and women participated in today's St. Patrick's Day parade.

Egan Caney, president of the Labor Alliance, characterized the celebration as a further step for "politicians and officeholders in control of the Irish organization here to gain notoriety by their appeals to the religious and patriotic feelings of our unfortunate people who have been battered and betrayed for years."

Major K. A. Kelly, an officer of the American Association for the Reformation of the Irish Republic, said the parade would not be representative of the Irish population of the city.

What Bay Staters Are Saying

MAYOR CURLEY, speaking in Symphony Hall at the high-bred celebration of St. Patrick's Day, declared: "Ireland now is no-half as armed camp, while the other half of the citizens are in chains."

REV. JAMES J. CORRIGAN, S. J., of Boston College, in address on "Modernism" in the Fenway Academy auditorium, asserted that the modernistic views of the Grant of New York are not Christian. "Dr. Gray's modernism," he outlined in his "secret address at Harvard," he said, "is a sterile hybrid born of all religious pretensions."

RABBI HARRY LEVY, in a sermon at the Temple Israel, said: "The race organizes the evil element of the community will have the upper hand. Eliminate the misanderstandings between Jew and Christian and set together and solve the local, national and international problems."

ALEXANDER BRIN of the Jewish Advocate, at the William Brewster Chelco, said: "No man in America today wields a greater moral and spiritual influence on mankind than Dr. Charles W. Eliot, the greatest living American of modern times."

At Last—A safe way to buy a Used Car

People who are not ready to buy a new car hesitate to buy a used automobile because they fear there is something wrong with it. Confidence is the basis of all successful business and particularly is this true in buying and selling a used automobile. Now for the first time you are offered a FREE service that will give you protection when buying a used car.

This certificate pasted on the windshield is your protection.

Don't buy a car without it.

The Boston American inspects the car. The United Mutual Insurance Co. joins the American in protecting you.

Here are the facts:

Expert automobile mechanics of the Boston American examine every car that is offered for sale in the "Inspected-Insured" Automobile columns of the Boston American. These mechanics will verify the year of make, the factory number, general mechanical condition of the whole car, brakes, body, frame, steering gear, tool equipment and tires.

When the condition of the car has been determined, the Boston American will put an "Inspected-Insured" certificate on the windshield of the car. This certificate will state in detail the condition of the car. Read it and you will have an expert's opinion about the car.

TO BUYERS: If you wish to buy a used car, motor cycle, or a used truck, be sure that it bears the certificate pictured herewith. This is for protection against hidden defects, and assures you that the condition of the car is exactly as represented. There are many cases when to buy a used car is more economical and proper than to go without an automobile or burden yourself with the extra expense of a new car. For your protection buy only the used cars that bear the Boston American blue certificate.

TO CAR OWNERS: If you have a used car For Sale that will stand a thorough investigation by an expert, the Boston American will inspect it and issue a "Inspected-Insured" certificate.

TO DEALERS: If you have a used car which you are willing to sell at a fair price and that is in mechanical condition that will stand a thorough investigation by an expert, the Boston American will be pleased to inspect it and issue an "Inspected-Insured" certificate.

FREE INSURANCE: Inspected-Insured Used Cars will be insured free of charge for a limited time by the Boston American. This protects buyers of Used Cars against Fire or Theft until you can cover the car with insurance yourself.

Never before in the history of the Automobile has such a valuable service been offered by a newspaper to its readers

FANS DECLARE GARDNER MICKEY WALKER

FANS DECLARE GARDNER DEFEATED FRIEDMAN

DEFEATED FRIEDMAN

By JACK CONWAY.

More letters continue to pour into this writer in regard to the Gardner-Friedman book. Most of the fans believe Gardner won, though there are also many of Friedman's readers.

Gaze at 'em and then weep.

"Apparently you are familiar with the book 'The Gardner-Friedman Case' by the late William F. Friedman, which was published in 1920. It is a book on the life of an occasion when Alvin Friedman of the U.S. Navy was charged with the task of deciphering the German code, the masterpiece flash from Maxwell.

"Your little story in the 'Post' is a splendid of the late Gardner-Friedman book. I am a fan of the book and have read it many times. I am a fan of the book and have read it many times. I am a fan of the book and have read it many times.

men a beating match in Boston. In fact, every two weeks. During this I have seen some awfully poor fellows, but I never struck one and he never struck me."

"I have seen some fellows who are confident with five fellows, among whom I was one of the 10," he continued. "I was in the 10th row, however, I sat in the third row on the stage. If we are unanimous opinion that together we can save minds, and at least beat the other three men."

"Jim Healy, on the way out, said a well-known professor. Healy asked, 'Was do you think was?' The referee's reply was 'You have to ask me.' It was agreed to someone in the lecture, except a certain setting element, that chapter had men all the way. I was very anxious to see the morning paper, feeling sure that I would comment on the importance of the decision. But, to my amazement, they had in effect said Friedman had decisively beaten the market.

"We will agree that Friedman is a very shifty fellow, and capable of doing his man out, but in all his experience he has never taken the beating he received the other night."

CALLS DECISION TO

FRIEDMAN UNJUST.
O. K. W. writes:
Dear Jack:
I don't see how it's possible for you not to believe all you read and hear regarding our new magazine. I'm sure that if you might let me read it, I would be able to tell you that I never saw Friedman take more pleasure than he did in the ten rounds of that fight.
"His boys were red and brimful, and the Jack Gardner landed him a great beating," says your issue. I'm sure that Friedman tried to tell it as he was out-contrived in the opening paragraph.
"Best seat in Jack's, as the fans still hold it to high honor. Your pleasure may be thwarted in directions rendered, but not actual size, it seems that the judges will favor your side as no doubt."
I have many many new additions headed grand little ring general as Gardner described, rubbed after coming through with as much as a scratch on him, and when 90 per cent. of a crowd say in their minds for you minutes after a decision has been given and "wait," don't you think that Gardner must have won more than three rounds?

Admire Gardner fan writers. Taking advantage of your splendid idea, thought I would like to stir the boys.

BRAVES HAVE FIVE MAJOR LEAGUE GAMES IN FIVE DAYS

GIBSON IS SENT TO MINORS

By NICK FLATLEY
St. Petersburg, Fla., March 17.—Ere another week rolls into history the Braves should have enough baseball tucked under their foreheads to get any flinger on the landscape to carry through.

The team will play five engagements before the season opens on Sunday week, and in the course of that ambitious program Manager Bancroft should collect all the necessary information about his young players.

Benny hasn't too many pitchers on hand to work with normally, and with that flock of contenders ahead, he will be forced to use every flinger on the landscape to carry through.

It's a rather bad break, Benny explained, "to have all the games come up when we haven't had enough weather to get anybody ready, but on the other hand, it will make every man in club get in these some time or other, and then we can see what material is worth keeping."

Winning these Spring games isn't important, except in so far as it gives any club good to beat somebody, but the Braves this Spring have a lot of right arm, and it will be more than a few defeats to discourage them.

"When all the boys are in shape we will give anybody's ball club a real run, and a week of good baseball better just about will fix things."

In justice to the Florida weather, which has been playing a lot of practical jokes, it might be remarked that it shows signs of returning to normal weather.

Sunday was the first Springlike day we have encountered in these parts, and as the boys were not obliged to practice, they indulged in the usual tourist pastimes of golf, fishing, watching the Pelicans and other things like that.

There are a few colds in the ball club, but a Summer sun will melt them promptly. The two outfield cringers, Cruise and Nixon, will be ready to get into the games, which will start with the Senators here, and that will help the situation greatly.

Five games in five days is a mean Spring week, and not the best thing in the world for a ball team, but there are things like that.

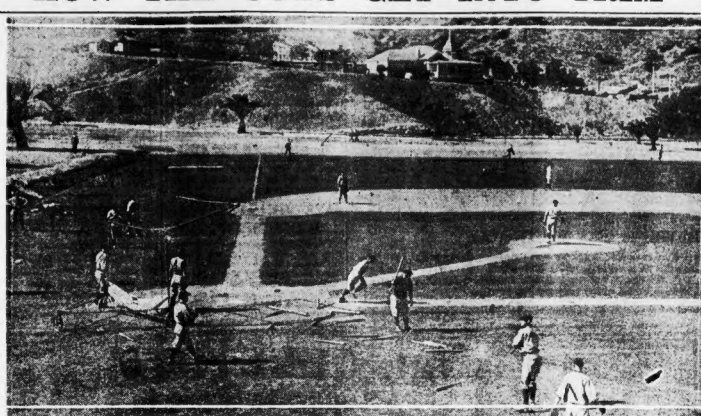

The club will advertise for pitchers, most likely, by the end of the month. Four of the games are here in St. Petersburg. The White Sox come into town Wednesday, Cleveland Thursday, and the Giants Saturday.

The Braves will make one dreary journey. They go to Leaning to play the last place Phillies. According to rumor, they go to the last place in Florida to do that little thing.

Catcher Frank Gibson, holdout, has been waived out of the National League, it develops, and has been handed over to the Worcester Club on option.

There are quite a few clubs that could use Gibson, who is a pretty good performer, but he refused even to come here to talk business, so the works were put off. We have a notion that he will be used in a trade with one of the Florida clubs before the campaign ends. He's too good for the minors.

USED CAR BUYER PROTECTED BY AMERICAN

Autos Advertised in "Inspected-Insured" Columns Are Carefully Examined

For the first time in the history of the automobile industry, a newspaper gives its readers free protection from exploitation in the buying of Used Cars.

A new service inaugurated and sponsored by the Boston American, enables Used Car buyers to know the condition of the Used Car they are thinking of buying. By selecting an "Inspected-Insured" Used Car which carries a certificate on the windshield giving a report of the car's condition and other important information, the prospective purchaser immediately knows whether or not he is getting full value for his money.

The following is a brief outline of the Boston American's "Inspected-Insured" Used Car plan which promises to revolutionize the Used Car market in Boston.

Expert automobile mechanics employed by the Boston American examine every car for sale in the "Inspected-Insured" automobile columns of the Boston American. These mechanics verify the year of make, factory number, general mechanical condition of the whole car, brakes, body, frame, steering gear, tool equipment and tires.

When the condition of the car has been determined, the Boston American places an "Inspected-Insured" certificate on the windshield. This certificate states in detail the condition of the car, and gives the prospective purchaser the expert mechanic's opinion.

"Inspected-Insured" Used Cars are insured 7 or 8 years for twelve months after purchase by the Boston American. This protects the Used Car buyer against fire or theft until he himself has been able to cover the car with insurance. All "Inspected-Insured" Used Cars are advertised with an asterisk (*).

FRENCH FRANC AT 4.9, SIXTEEN-POINT JUMP

New York, March 17.—Heavy speculative accumulation of foreign buying drove the French franc upward 1.51 cents at the opening of the foreign exchange market today, a gain of 16 points from Saturday's closing. The franc also rose, opening at 4.81 cents and touching 4.97 in the first hour.

CONFIDENCE

Is the basis of business. You can have confidence now in having any used car bearing a BOSTON AMERICAN inspection certificate. A free, impartial, mechanical inspection is made of all cars bearing this certificate as to the condition of the car, and there will be no faults show up after you drive it home.

CELEBRITIES IN BIG FILM

SCENE FROM THE "GREAT WHITE WAY"

More than a score of Broadway celebrities appear in the big film now being shown at the Park Theatre. Included are famous sporting men, authors, artists and others. Shown in the picture in the foreground are, left to right, Irvin S. Cobb, Tex Rickard, Damon Runyon, Oscar Shaw, E. Mason Hopper, who directed the film; H. C. Witwer, author of the story and "Bugs" Race.

Great Cosmopolitan Production Is Daily Packing the Park Theatre

The Cosmopolitan production, "The Great White Way," is drawing great crowds at the Park Theatre through the wealth of its amusing situations and the humor of the story. With a humorous and dramatic story to picture the producers have come to the farthest extent to make it a spectacular picture production.

H. C. Witwer in the writing of "The Great White Way" from which the picture was made, placed his scenes in and around Broadway with diverting localities such as the race track and the prize ring. His hero is a champion prizefighter who encounters romance through meeting a leading dancer in a musical revue. Their love course is strewn with obstacles arising from difficulties that affect the young woman, and their adventures take them, and necessarily the spectators of the picture, back stage in the producing of a new musical revue, a race-course during the running of a great steeple-chase, and a big boxing arena where a championship battle is staged.

The producers in order to provide authenticity to these scenes enlisted a cast that appears to include everybody who is anybody along Broadway and its periphery. There are nearly a hundred leaders in sport, theatricals and journalism who are pictured in different scenes.

CONFIDENCE

Is the basis of business. You can have confidence now in having any used car bearing a BOSTON AMERICAN inspection certificate. A free, impartial, mechanical inspection is made of all cars bearing this certificate as to the condition of the car, and there will be no faults show up after you drive it home.

EXPLOSION IN LAWRENCE PLANT

Distant Buildings Rocked by Blowup of Gas Plant Generator

Lawrence, March 17.—An explosion that could be heard for miles about and which rocked buildings blocks away, occurred at the plant of the Lawrence Gas Company, when a 100-kilowatt generator blew up.

No one was near the generator at the time of the explosion and employees at work in the plant escaped unscathed.

The explosion tore away a part of the building and set fire to the structure, but the flames were extinguished before the arrival of the Lawrence firemen.

SAVES DRY LAW SAVES MIDDLESEX $100,000

Leonard Suspended From Hub Force as Result of North End Fracas

Patrolman Walter L. Leonard of the Hanover street station, former chief of police of Wrentham, has been suspended pending an inquiry into his shooting of John Carnovitz, No. 25 Endicott street, a friend, following a quarrel which started while the latter was attempting to start an automobile in front of his house.

Carnovitz, during the course of the fight, is alleged to have kicked Leonard and so hard he might have felt the effects of it during the rest of his life.

Mrs. Carnovitz came running out of the house in time to see her husband fall to the sidewalk while struggling with the officer.

When Leonard pushed her away from him she fell to the sidewalk and then it was that Carnovitz, ensnared by the belief that the patrolman had struck his wife, kicked him.

Carnovitz is said to have stated at the relief station that the shooter was all a mistake and that he would not push any charge against the officer.

CHICKIE

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

THE STORY OF CHICKIE THUS FAR

Child Bree's first romance ended disastrously. At seven she had a crush on a fellow student at the school. But when she was sixteen she was introduced to a young man named Barry. Barry was a handsome, well-to-do young man, and Chickie was attracted to him. Barry was a student at the same school as Chickie, and they were introduced by a mutual friend. JAMIES interposed. "Chickie's just hopped off a frying-pan, she may not choose to jump into the fire."

"Don't mind her, Miss Bree. I don't give that kind of party. Very nice—mother's along. You come and bring your staid."

"You're a steady as a plumb line," said Chickie. "Then bring your staid."

Brave Old St. Patrick, Millions Honor Him Today

Fifteen hundred and twenty years ago the young Saint Patrick, carried to Ireland as a slave in a raid made by the Irish King, Niall Noigiallach, was herding swine on the lands of Chief Milchu, near the mountain Slennish, in County Antrim, taking good care of his pigs and wondering how he could escape to do worthier and more important work.

He fled to the Wicklow coast and was taken on board a half pirate vessel, engaged in the trade of savage Irish wolf dogs, sold to equally savage French nobles, for use in the chase.

Can you imagine anything more wild than that voyage on a small sailing vessel across the Irish Sea, with the howling of the wolf dogs and the cursing of the savage sailors sounding in the young lad's ears?

But Patrick, whose Welsh Gaelic name, Hygad, means "war like," was no timid person. That he proved when he braved the barbarous wild Irish King on his own hill off Tara and on many other occasions.

Landed in France, young Patrick entered the monastery of Lerins, where he studied hard, always planning a return to Ireland, where he felt his work awaited him.

First, like a good son, he made a brief visit to his home in the British Islands, probably in Scotland. Historians are uncertain about the exact location of the place called Bannaneta, where he is known to have been born.

There he stayed not long, for his heart and his dreams kept calling him to Ireland. He tells you in his own writings about his life:

"I imagined that I heard in my mind the voice of those who were near the wood of Foclut, which is near the Western Sea, and thus they cried: 'We pray thee, holy youth, to come and walk again amongst us, as before.'"

More time was devoted to study and preparation, and then Patrick returned to Ireland, to gain the honor and glory that are his to this day.

Few were the Christian communities in Ireland in that ancient time, fifteen hundred years ago. They were communities small and weak in the southeastern part of Ireland. Patrick carried Christianity to every foot of that soil. He did more than drive out the snakes. He drove out Paganism, and when he had well done his work in Ireland he traveled eastward on the continent, taking Christianity with him.

He was a fighting Christian, fearless, believing that he had in his faith a weapon more powerful than all the fighting men of any Irish King.

When he sailed on his mission to Ireland, no longer a boy slave, but a highly trained and educated young man, consecrated to his work, he was told that his success would depend on his faith, his ability to get along nicely with the savage Irish chiefs and other enemies of the church.

"Getting along nicely" was the least of Patrick's desires. On the high hill of Tara, consecrated to Ireland's old Pagan Gods, there was held a great Pagan festival. And by order of the high King Logaire, son of Noigiallach, whose men had kidnapped Patrick in his boyhood, there was to be no fire lighted in all Ireland until he, the high king, had lighted his grand fire on Tara's hill. That word came to St. Patrick, who knew that it was the night of Easter Eve. Asking no man's consent, he lighted his Paschal fire on the hill of Slane.

Patrick's fire blazed out ahead of the high king's fire, and that started the fight between Patrick and the Druids, with King Logaire backing the Druids.

Druids and King lost; Patrick won. Not satisfied with defying King Logaire, Patrick defied the idols and all their deity to prove they had not power against his real religion. Patrick threw down the famous and powerful idol called Cromm Cruach from his proud place in the plain off Mag Slecht, County Cavan.

Logaire, with his cloak, made from the hide of blue bull, and Cromm Cruach, with his ugly face and painted eyes, are forgotten, while Saint Patrick is honored today by millions of his own land and of other lands.

Before long, victorious all the way, founding churches everywhere, Patrick stood at the extreme edge of Ireland, "beyond which no man is." How would the old Saint have been surprised could he have looked fifteen hundred years ahead and three thousand miles across the dark ocean? He would have seen the Irish land remembering and honoring him on two continents of America. He would have read Irish names on the gravestones of victorious fighters all over the world.

If you have faith in the right and are willing to fight for it, you will not be forgotten.

Too Much Doubt?

Sometimes It's Useful

Copyright, 1924, H. R. Co.

The Reverend Dr. Stires says there is too much doubting in the world. "What men believe, not what they deny, is important." That's true, of course, since the reverend doctor says it. All the same it's a good thing to doubt occasionally, along proper lines, for that's how men increase their information.

We used to think the earth was flat, doubt cured that. We used to think that poor, mumbling, old men were witches that rode on broomsticks to the devil at midnight and carried on. They burned the poor, old creatures. Doubt cured that. And such doubting was once considered a mortal sin. They used to think devils and hobgoblins rode on the Lord aimed it at something. They didn't explain why it hit steeples pretty often. Doubt ended that and brought the lightning down and put it to work.

Doubt, like everything else, can be overdone, but it's also useful, occasionally. Doubt and Discontent—thank Heaven for them. They push men onward. The Bible itself says, "Prove all things, hold fast to that which is good." "Prove all things" means Doubt 'till you know.

LISTEN, WORLD! By ELSIE ROBINSON

WITHIN the last year death has taken from our nation two great men.

Woodrow Wilson and Warren Harding are together in eternity. All that may be said in love and honor has been said of them.

But, strangely, little has been said of the two women they left behind—two wives, who in their hours of bitterest anguish gave something of greatness to the world which is comparable to any record ever made by their illustrious husbands. With their lives in ruins about them, Florence Harding and Edith Wilson carried on.

They carried on. Does that seem merely natural to you? Think back a bit. Think back to what that phrase meant in the generations of mourning women which preceded these two lives. Do you remember what it meant in the Victorian era? Those were the days of elaborate feminine ritual, as all the days before them had been. From the drop of her curls to the throbbing of her heart, My Lady acted according to schedule, and that schedule was strong for droops and throbs. All bona fide heroines fainted at the slightest provocation.

A definite viewpoint lay behind such hysteria. Self-restraint was obligatory upon men, but woman was supposed to be the creature of her emotions. This was both flattering to the man and seemingly profitable to the woman. In her weakness lay her charm—so she was taught. But it was only seemingly profitable. My Lady was exalted and exonerated in the drawing-room. But on the statute books she was ranked with idiots, criminals and children. She paid a dreadful price for her "carrying on."

The dawn of the twentieth century saw women's waists and viewpoints still pinched, women's feet and freedom still stumbling over anything folds. The "tailored girl" was making her way with difficulty. Starched collars mix poorly with floods of tears. Nevertheless, she was coming. With the war she almost ceased to wring her hands. But still she was, and is, hampered by that old tradition which valued her for her emotional rather than her intellectual strength.

That is the social canvas against which Florence Harding and Edith Wilson were called to play their part. Their playing of that part mattered tremendously to American women entering a new phase. Were tears to bear, and they bore it unflinchingly. In doing that they conquered more than their personal despair. They conquered that black precedent which has ordained that all women shall be the victims of despair.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE HEALTH VALUE OF SCANDAL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ALL sorts of scandalous exposures have been taking place in the nation. Names of high renown have been smirched, newspaper headlines have become more and more lurid and there has been a great scamping of politicians for the tall timber.

All this has usually been taken as food for pessimism. Many have exclaimed, "What is the country coming to when men in high office have been shown as betraying their trust? Does it not prove that our Government is rotten? Does it not prove that Democracy is a failure and that we are at the mercy of unscrupulous wealth units?"

It proves nothing of the kind.

On the contrary it proves that the country is healthy. For it is a good deal better to have a boil break out on your neck than to have inward blood poisoning.

Conditions of graft and crookedness exist more or less in all countries. Those who are familiar with conditions in European and Oriental nations know that bribery and grand and petty pilfering are extant all the time. The difference between them and us is that here it breaks out quickly and there it remains covered.

These exposures that have recently taken place in the United States mean that there is no royal family, there are no ancient houses nor solemn dignities which must not be touched.

The searchlight of investigation is liable to fall on anybody, anywhere, from a Cabinet Minister to a Mayor. These exposures show that there is a sound public opinion which may at all times be successfully appealed to.

They prove that we have a conscience, a lively and sensitive conscience.

They demonstrate that gumshoeing gentlemen cannot quiet the people with whispers of "Hush! Hush!"

Back of all the present condition in Senate and House of Representatives is that stern, silent conscience of Main Street to which ultimately all the contestants must appeal.

A palm-greasing system cannot establish itself into a permanent institution; for some Congressman or Senator is liable to rise any day and throw a bomb.

The one thing that is fixed and established in the conscience of the common people; the honesty of the great mass; the surest road to permanent popularity, if not the quickest, is for a politician to align himself to that conscience and appeal to it.

After sitting through several of the turbulent investigations of recent scandals I have come out, not with despair for the republic and its institutions but with a greater confidence than ever in the honesty of most public men and, above all, in the eventual righteousness of any decision that may be rendered by the great public.

These diseases of scandal has are not concealed diseases that rot the bones and vitiate the blood, but diseases that quickly break out in some sort of rash and are not a menace to life.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON LIFE EXPERIMENTS

By Garrett P. Serviss Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

THE great physiologist, Jacques Loeb, who has just died, did not succeed in discovering the secret of the origin of life. A score of years ago he was the centre of much excited interest, for he had thought that he had all but put his hand upon the great secret and was just on the point of making living organisms out of non-living substances.

But Professor Loeb's aim was far more modest than that. He was trying only to produce artificial fertilization of the eggs of certain animals, notably sea urchins and frogs. Indeed it was parthenogenesis (virgin birth) which he sought to induce by artificial means, and in this he succeeded.

I once visited his laboratory in California where he then resided. He was a man of great energy and was under way. The "artificial" element in the process consisted mostly in the expert manipulation of the eggs, but he was certain natural processes an opportunity to set to work, these seemed to be no essential artificiality concerned.

Eggs that had not been fertilized by the male element were induced to develop and to hatch out the young, under the influence of hyper-chemical, i. e., over-salted sea water. The hyper-chemical action that brought about the effect, but it did not go back, and Professor Loeb, of course, did not pretend that it went back to the original state of the eggs, but he was already living, and the result of the experiment was that the eggs subjected in the laboratory was not a creation of life, but simply the substitution of a non-sexual for the sexual method of fertilization.

Loeb, however, in his experiments was an eye-witness and a great step in advance in the scientific study of life forces.

The experiments in the fertilization of frogs' eggs were more striking in appearance, because with these eggs a pin-prick had to be applied and the process that was more suggestive of scientific magic, but in reality the two methods had the same basis, viz., the application of a physical or chemical shock to start the living forces in the egg on the way of development.

After Professor Loeb's experiments became known to the public he went from the Pacific Coast to New York, where he lectured to crowded and admiring audiences of men and women, and for some time he was the centre of much interest and the subject of much discussion.

Professor Loeb also carried far his experiments in the mysterious subject of "tropism," which is defined as "the inherent tendency of a living thing to respond definitely to an external stimulus." The "living thing" may be either a plant or an animal. The sunflower (heliotropis) is perhaps the most familiar example in the vegetable world.

But Professor Loeb imparted a kind of fascination to the subject when he began to experiment with widely with animals. He tried to induce a one-sided effect in the insect brain, the result of which is that the body of the insect is more strongly stimulated than on the other, and so the insect's flight is, without its volition, turned toward the candle. But when the source of light becomes a source of heat, the insect is more strongly attracted than the other, and so the insect's flight is, without its volition, turned toward the candle. But when the source of light becomes a source of heat, the insect is more strongly attracted than the other, and so the insect's flight is, without its volition, turned toward the candle.

When the moth, he affirmed, is attracted to the candle flame, it is not because it is more strongly attracted than the other, but because it is more strongly attracted than the other, and so the insect's flight is, without its volition, turned toward the candle. But when the source of light becomes a source of heat, the insect is more strongly attracted than the other, and so the insect's flight is, without its volition, turned toward the candle.
